When you upload your project, you have to decide to whom you will grant the permission to find and possibly read the project.

1. "Publicly available" – public. Visible for everybody on the Internet.
2. "Internal access"- partially public. Visible on a student portal for everybody at all university colleges in Denmark by login.
3. "Backend - restricted to PURE users" Visible for a few administrative employees in VIA.

External collaboration

It is important that you add external partners/collaborators.

The definition of whether you should register an external cooperation is:

- Your or your group's partner/collaborators has discussed a problem.
- You or your group has discussed the project's problem (what the project is about?) with an external partner/collaborators, such as a school, institution or company.
- Your or your group's partner/collaborators, have demanded the finished project because they have interest in the project's problem and / or results.
